The biggest problem is how the issues list works. Right now it grabs and displays all of the data from the database. Spent time on the other hand is "protected" by a permission, so users without that permission can't see the values. So we'd need to add extra permissions checking to the issues list to support hiding it from non-authorized users.

That's why I have a hack for it but it hasn't been applied. I do agree with you, it would be a great addition.
