I see only one user called @riceball@ (3 @l@ at the end) on this site at the moment, maybe you have misspelled your login when you registered?

- Category changed from User accounts to chiliproject.org Website

We now have two users for you: one called @riceball@ (3 l) and one called @riceball@. The first one is activated, the second one is not. Note that you first need to activate your account before you can use it. You have to click on the link of the first email you receive after registering. This process is different from resetting the password for an existing user.

I've already click the link of the first email. but It's no effect now. Maybe the link is expired. But no any place to resend or execute other operation on it. So It's a bug.

BTW, why not using the reset password link in the email to active the user if the project settings is an email-activated automatilly?
